Teamster Union Boss Pleads Innocent on Perjury Charge

NEW YORK (AP)—James R. Hoffa, Teamsters Union leader, pleaded innocent in U.S. District Court today to five counts of perjury involving a federal grand jury investigation of wiretapping in his Detroit headquarters.

A previous $2,500 bail bond, covering his release in a wiretap conspiracy case, was rewritten to cover the perjury indictment.

Attorneys for Hoffa and the government were to argue later before U.S. Dist. Judge William B. Herlands as to trial dates in both cases.

Hoffa recently was elected president of the 1,400,000-member International Brotherhood of Teamsters, but has been barred by court order from taking office.

Shortly after Hoffa entered his plea, Benjamin Franklin Collins, secretary-treasurer of Teamster Local 299 in Detroit, pleaded innocent to a separate 12-count perjury indictment returned by the same grand jury.

Collins was charged with lying in testifying before the grand jury that original minutes of the local's city cartage division for March 11, 1953, had not been altered.

Herlands tentatively set Nov. 6 for Collins' trial and released him on $2,500 bail.

Hoffa posed for photographers but told reporters he had nothing to say.

Hoffa was grim-faced as the perjury indictment against him was read.

"Not guilty," he responded in a loud voice.

The 44-year-old Detroit's plans to take over the scandal-tainted Teamsters Union today or tomorrow were upset yesterday by U.S. District Court in Washington.

Federal Judge F. Dickinson Letts issued a temporary restraining order that barred Hoffa and others elected with him Oct. 4 at the union's Miami Beach convention from taking office.

The term of Dave Beck, incumbent president, runs to Dec. 1. Beck had agreed, however, to step aside to give Hoffa an earlier start in directing the 1,400,000-man union.

On his arrival here yesterday, Hoffa said it appeared that he would have to defer his plan to take over the Teamsters immediately. He said Beck would stay on the job pending resolution of the legal issues.

Last Sept. 25, Hoffa was indicted on five counts of perjury. He was charged with lying to a federal racketeering grand jury investigating the use of wiretaps in his Detroit union headquarters.

To Hold Hearing On Katy Request For Train Halt

JEFFERSON CITY (AP)—The hearing room of the state public service commission here will be jammed here tomorrow as the Missouri-Kansas-Texas Railroad Co. asks permission to abandon St. Louis and Parsons, Kan.

The state's utility regulating commission advised all the towns up and down the Katy's main line of the road's request Aug. 20. Also advised were railroad unions postmasters and congressmen.

The deluge of complaints began almost immediately.

The congressman from the 11th District of central Missouri, Rep. Morgan M. Moulder, Camden Democrat, said he would appear himself to protest.

16 Marines Face Trial In Japan

General Court for 2; 14 Others Will Go Before Lower Court

YOKOSUKA, Japan (AP)—The U.S. Navy today ordered general court-martial trials for two U.S. Marines accused of mistreating Navy prisoners at Sasebo, Japan, and trials before special courts-martial for 14 others.

Vice Adm. Roscoe F. Good, commander of U.S. Naval forces in Japan, ordered the general courts for Sergeants Robert J. Barbuti, 23, of Schenectady, N.Y., and Adrian A. McLane, 24, of Philadelphia.

The special courts—which cannot hand down as severe sentences as general courts—were ordered for Sergeants Thomas G. Flint, Mobile, Ala.; Bobby W. Phillips, 22, Tyler, Tex.; Maurice J. Beeson, 22, Palo Alto, Calif.; Corporals Richard E. Painter, 21, Independence, Mo.; Sheldon D. Sibell, 21, Nelson, Minn.; James T. Ray, 21, Texas City, Tex.; Glenn W. Fredericks, 21, Anchorage, Alaska; Dayton D. Dickerson, 21, Miller, S. D.; Pfc. Patrick J. Stalker, 25, San Jose, Calif.; Frank K. Pasternak, 22, Chicopee, Mass.; Donald B. Stansell, 21, Little Rock, Ark.; Owen J. Booth, 22, Scranton, Pa.; Privates William T. Youngerman, 20, Dayton, Ohio, and Jose D. L. Medina, 22, Albuquerque, N.M.

The Navy announcement did not list specific charges but said the 16 Marines were to be tried "for offenses charged in connection with complaints of maltreatment made by prisoners" in the brig at the U.S. Navy base at Sasebo, 650 miles west of Tokyo.

The two men facing general courts-martial, Barbuti and McLane, "held positions of responsibility as beat wardens," said the announcement. The 14 other Marines involved were guards at the Sasebo brig.

Charges against the Marines were signed Sept. 12 by their own commander, Maj. Hasekell C. Baker of Atlanta, Ga.

Baker's report accused various of the Marines of assaulting two prisoners with a bayonet, ordering a prisoner to have a bowel movement in front of others and igniting lighter fluid under him, ordering a man to wash his face in a toilet, pushing a pencil up a prisoner's nose, burning a prisoner with a cigarette butt, plucking hairs from one man's mustache, wetting men down with hoses and a fire extinguisher, threatening prisoners with a shotgun and pistols, ordering one to bite other personnel and considerable slapping, punching and kicking.

Following this meeting the group adjourned to the City Hall where they were welcomed to Sedalia and Central Missouri by Carlton L. Kelley, president pro tem of the City Council and Acting Mayor for Mayor Julian H. Bagby who is out of the City.

Monday afternoon the group made a tour of the Missouri Pacific shops, visiting and seeing the working of the various departments.

Tuesday morning at 10 o'clock the team was given a tour of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co. present offices and operations after which they were escorted to the new telephone company building at Fifth and Massachusetts where they saw the new equipment for

Business Office Moves

Telephone Building Beehive Of Activity With Installation

Effective next Monday morning, Oct. 21, at 8:30 o'clock the telephone business office will be located in the new building at Fifth and Massachusetts.

This will be the first department to complete a move that will directly effect the public. Other departments will complete moving operations as the equipment is made ready. The new Southwestern Bell Telephone Company building at Fifth and Massachusetts Streets is becoming a beehive of activity since installation of the new dial switching equipment started.

More complicated than an income tax form, the type of switching equipment to be used here is known to telephone people as "Number Five Crossbar," and is a post-war development of the telephone industry.

Norman Pitcairn, manager here for Southwestern Bell, said the equipment will be the nerve center for Sedalia's $3,000,000 dial telephone system scheduled to go into operation this winter, and is the finest and most modern available to the telephone industry today.

The first installation of "Number Five Crossbar" in the country was at Media, Pa., a suburb of Philadelphia, in 1948. Pitcairn pointed out.

It took the Bell Telephone Laboratories 10 years to develop it using the knowledge and experience gained from operating other types of dial equipment. Refinements continue to be made in the equipment as more and more of it is put in service, Pitcairn said.

"It takes an expert to explain how this equipment operates," Pitcairn said, "and there's no better man to do the job than F. J. Crnic."

Crnic, Head Central Office Repairman for the telephone company here, said "Number Five Crossbar" is virtually a mechanical brain, and is the fastest switching equipment in use in the telephone industry today.

"It operates like a relay team in a track meet," he explained. "The various parts of the equipment form a team and pass your call like a baton to each other."

What happens when you want to make a call? Here's how Crnic explains it.

Lifting the receiver starts the race and sends the first runner—called a "marker"—on its way, with your line representing the "baton". The "marker" passes your line to a "register" and goes back to the sidelines to await the start of another race.

The "register" sends a dial tone back to you, letting you know it's okay to dial. Thus far, only about a half-second has elapsed.

As you dial, the "register" counts and records the digits and registers the number you're calling. Failure to dial all seven letters and numbers signifies a false start and the "register", after waiting 7 to 10 seconds, figures the call was a mistake and gives it up. It then goes back to the starting line to get ready for the next event.

If you dial correctly the "register" quickly passes your line to another "marker". This "marker" is told the number you dialed.

The "marker" starts out on a journey to connect your telephone with the one you dialed. Through a series of intricate electrically controlled steps, the "marker" finds a clear path through the

Heavy Rains Hit Texas After Floods

DALLAS, Tex. (AP)—Violent thunderstorms rumbled over Texas today following tornadoes and floods that killed at least three persons and drove hundreds from their homes.

A squall line that moved over Pawnee in southern Texas dropped an inch and a half of rain in 20 minutes at 7:30 a. m. out of black rolling clouds. Cleburne, in north-central Texas, got two inches in an hour and a half.

Rusk in eastern Texas got 10.50 inches in 24 hours.

One man drowned in central Texas when his auto plunged into a rain-swollen creek. Another drowned in southeast Texas when a bridge gave way beneath him and a third was lost in the same area when high winds swamped his small boat.

The floods also stranded seven persons in a school bus, wrecked a passenger train and drove hundreds from their homes. Dozens of highways were closed.

At Ballinger in West Texas, which had the worst flooding, about 150 spent last night at a Red Cross shelter. Runtells County Judge W. H. Rampey hesitated to place a dollar loss on the flood, but said he thought it was light "and we are pleased that the loss was not more serious and that we escaped without loss of life."

State police took seven persons by boat from a school bus stranded between two creeks near Taylor in central Texas.

A Missouri-Kansas-Texas trestle at Weir, in central Texas, collapsed, derailed the engine and four baggage cars of a San Antonio-Dallas passenger train. No one was injured.

Senator Says Millions Spent On Canceled Missile Projects

Reports Data to Support Proposed Unified Agency

WASHINGTON (AP)—Sen. Mansfield D-Mont, said today that Pentagon figures show more than 850 million dollars spent on missile projects that have been canceled.

At the same time, Mansfield said in an interview that Congress voted "every single dime that was asked for research and development" for the fiscal year which began July 1.

The assistant Senate Democratic leader denied that the cost data was secret military information even though Pentagon spokesmen said part of the figures had not been released for publication.

"It certainly is not secret, and I don't know why it should be," Mansfield said.

He said he made the cost data public to support his proposal that all government missile and satellite projects be coordinated under a single program similar to the Manhattan Project which developed the atomic bomb during World War II.

Mansfield proposed the unified program after Soviet Russia scored in the field of rocketry by launching the first earth satellite.

The senator said the Air Force spent between 800 and 850 million on its Navaho, canceled project for a long-range guided intercontinental missile. He said the Navy spent 45 millions on a Sparrow II missile and another 24 millions on Triton, long-range guided missile, before these projects were canceled.

Mansfield called the figures evidence of the "big cost of overlapping, waste, duplication and inefficiency" resulting from rivalry among the armed services in the missile field.

Mansfield said the Pentagon informed him that some 200 million dollars had been spent to date upon the Army's Jupiter project, and about 230 millions upon the rival Thor missile by the Air Force.

Both are intended as intermediate range ballistic missiles able to hit a target up to 1,500 miles.

In the current fiscal year, Mansfield said another 130 million dollars is available for spending on the Thor and another 35 millions for the Jupiter.

A top-level Pentagon group is now trying to work out a choice between the Thor and the Jupiter, or a way to combine them.

The air force has been given operational control of all missiles with ranges above 200 miles.

Mansfield said Congress voted $1,651,000,000 for research and development by defense agencies in the current fiscal year, the exact amount asked in President Eisenhower's budget. He said 661 millions of this goes to the Air Force, 505 millions to the Navy, 400 millions to the Army and 85 millions to an emergency fund controlled by the secretary of defense.

"We have plenty of money to spend on missiles and satellites without going above the 38 billion (military) spending ceiling set by the administration," Mansfield said.

"We would accomplish more if we put all our best brains together in a single coordinated program."

Mansfield said such a program should use Dr. Werner von Braun and his team of scientists at the Army's Redstone (Ala.) missile project.

Boy Scouts Hold Show Saturday

Roundup to Follow Circus Theme; Will Be At Coliseum

The curtain will rise at 7:30 p.m. Saturday night, Oct. 19, in the Coliseum at the state fair grounds, and on stage will be the Boy Scouts with their annual fall Round Up event.

Show Director Raymond Banks and his crew of ten assistant directors say this year's event will top all previous fall outings. A parade will open the affair — Hubbard high school's band will be stationed in the middle of the main arena, with Scouts pouring into the building from the west entrance. They will march, accompanied by the band, and just as quickly as possible the units will reassemble and the Boy Scout Circus will become a reality.

A cycling drill under the guidance of Clarence Robinson, Troop 51, and Kenneth Schreiner, Troop 69, will launch the Scouts on their way.

Troop 66, with Joe Wright as Scout Master, will perform an act of pioneering — bridge building; Troop 65, with Keith Eckstrom as Scout Master, will lend its ability to building a lean-to.

Cecil Shick, Pack 65, K. E. Anderson, Pack 60, and Orville Wolfe, Pack 67, will be in charge of the sack race.

To lend a real circus air to the affair, H. D. Jones and Charles Sheppard of Troop 55, will put their young charges through a gymnastic tumbling act.

The highlight of the night will be the huge Badge of Better Boys display. This is under the direction of C. A. Phillips and David Clement. Phillips was asked just what caused so much enthusiasm about this act. He said, "We are using all troops of the Pettis District in this — the boys will form

Area Declared Unsafe Due to Radioactivity

LONDON (AP)—A 200-square-mile area between England's lake district and the Irish Sea was a danger zone today from which milk could not be shipped because of radioactivity.

The Atomic Energy Authority said the escape of radioactive iodine had "not fallen off as rapidly" as was anticipated after uranium cartridges at the Windscale atomic station overheated Friday. Radioactive iodine spilled out of the plant chimney and fell on grazing land.

The authority increased an original 14-square-mile danger area to include 150 farms. Officials insist the situation is not serious, however.

Arabella Hong Guest Artist at Symphony

A fine symphony concert and an outstanding assisting artist rewarded the fairly large audience that ignored the rain Monday night, to attend the opening concert of the Sedalia Symphony Orchestra.

Arabella Hong, lyric-coloratura, accompanied by John Hoch, a talented young pianist, met with instant audience approval. Her dark hair, oriental eyes and creamy complexion were set off by a crimson taffeta gown and her stage presence was poised but vivacious. Her first group of songs included Mozart's famous "Alleluja" and she negotiated its intricate trills with ease and a seemingly inexhaustible supply of breath. Miss Hong's voice is notable for its warmth, unusual in the coloratura range, and her technique in the use of it perfection.

Opening her second group of songs with a lovely rendition of the Valse from Gounod's "Romeo and Juliet," she then charmed the audience with a group of tender ballads from contemporary musical comedies including "My Fair Lady" and "The King and I," and then closed with a spirited climax singing "Love Is Where You Find It." As an encore, Miss Hong sang a Chinese folk song, "The Little Monk," a simple song which showed the beauty of her middle range.

Again showing growth in stature, the orchestra, under Abe Rosenthal's baton, achieved notable degrees of shading in Haydn's "London" Symphony. Airmen from "South Pacific" gave ample opportunity for solo passages, notably a well-played flute solo by Gwen Ruppert with clarinet obligato by Dick Esser, and Mrs. Carl Schrader, pianist, playing "Some Enchanted Evening." The orchestra is exceedingly fortunate in having fine first chair people in all sections, some of them local people and

Army Orders Little Rock Troop Cut

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)—The Army took note yesterday of the calm atmosphere around recently integrated Central High School by ordering a drastic reduction in the number of soldiers protecting nine Negro students.

The surprise move announced by Secretary of the Army Brucker at Washington brought little response from this city, wracked by nearly seven weeks of racial tension.

Gov. Orval Faubus declined comment.

Mrs. L. C. Bates, Arkansas president of the NAACP, said: "We're not concerned. I certainly think the troops that remain will be able to handle anything that might arise. The community is getting back to normal."

Amis Guthridge, legal spokesman for the Capital Citizens Council, said, "Mr. Brucker's order made no impression on me whatsoever."

Army officials here seemed more surprised than civilians. An Army spokesman said last night that Maj. Gen. Edwin A. Walker, who commands both paratroopers and Arkansas National Guardsmen, had received no orders yet to release troops from duty here.

Brucker announced that 500 of the 1,000 members of the 101st Airborne Division will be returned immediately to their regular post at Ft. Campbell, Ky.

Brucker also said the Army will dismiss from federal control the bulk of Arkansas National Guardsmen federalized Sept. 24, the day the paratroopers arrived in Little Rock.

Only about 1,800 guardsmen will be retained on federal duty, the Army said, and the remaining 8,500 members of the Guard will be released.

The prolonged activation of the Guard had caused some rumblings from businesses and schools, who complained that employees, teachers and football players were being kept unnecessarily from their civilian duties.

Brucker said the decision to reduce the number of federal troops and guardsmen was "in recognition of the generally orderly situation" in Little Rock since Sept. 24.

Faubus announced at a news conference that he expects to call a special session of the Arkansas Legislature to seek a solution to the integration crisis.

Nobel Peace Prize Goes To Canadian

OSLO, Norway (AP) — Lester B. Pearson, former Canadian foreign secretary, has been awarded the 1957 Nobel Peace Prize. The prize amounts to $40,275.

In the United Nations last fall, Pearson spearheaded a campaign to bring peace to the Middle East, where Britain and France had joined Israel in an attack on Egypt.

Largely as a result of Pearson's activity, a U.N. Emergency Force was organized to separate the belligerents. This force still is on duty in the Gaza area.

Pearson in June lost his Canadian Cabinet job as a result of elections which brought the Conservative party to power in Canada, sweeping out the Liberals.

Today in Ottawa Pearson said he was thunderstruck at the announcement. He had not known of it until he was advised by reporters.

The committee again decided not to award the 1956 prize. The committee found no worthy candidate.

The 1956 prize, amount of which was not announced, which was disposed as follows: two-thirds to the main Nobel fund and one-third to the special fund of the Norwegian Nobel Committee.

Money Change In East Germany Threatens Funds

BERLIN (AP)—Western officials said today that the East German Communist regime's blitz change-over of currency threatens to wipe out millions of marks held by the satellite's population.

East Germans who tucked away their savings rather than trust the Communist banks were hard hit by the Red government's surprise order yesterday to turn in the old currency for a new issue.

The government paid out cash only up to 300 marks—about $16 at the Western exchange rate.

The balance, the Reds said, would be made available from banks starting next Saturday. But West Berlin and Allied officials said the terms of the Red decrees made plain that the old marks would not be honored unless the holders could certify in detail where the money came from.

Under the Communist economy of rationing and scarcity, millions of farmers, workers and small businessmen have gone in for illegal trade. The Reds pointedly announced that the currency switch was designed to wipe out this kind of "illegal speculation."

Juror Has Reason To Be Excused

VENTURA, Calif. (AP) — George Johnson was in a group of persons summoned for jury duty in a drunk driving case in Municipal Court.

Johnson told Deputy Marshall John Proby yesterday that he realized it was his civic duty to be a juror but that he really ought to be excused.

Proby demanded a reason.

"I'm the defendant," said Johnson. He was excused.

Heavy Rains Pelt Southwestern Areas; Texas Rivers Flood

By The Associated Press

More rain fell in sections of Texas today in the wake of stormy weather and floods. At least three persons drowned. Hundred of persons were driven from their homes by the overflow of rivers and creeks after continued downpours across the state.

Five tornadoes skipped across the Lone Star state yesterday, injuring at least three persons. Tornado winds were reported in many areas, with heavy rain in most all sections. Falls ranged up to nearly 9 inches at Palestine in the eastern part of the state and nearly 8 inches in Hutto in the central area.

The town of Ballinger in West Texas appeared the hardest hit by floods. About 150 of the town's 6,000 residents spent the night at a Red Cross shelter.

Heavy rain also pelted southwestern coastal areas of Louisiana. Southerly winds carrying warm moist air northward generated scattered showers and rain in most of the lower mid-Mississippi valley and eastern sections of the central and southern Plains states.

Mostly dry weather prevailed in areas east of the Mississippi valley although thunderstorms rumbled across southeastern Florida.

Resume Narcotics Trial of 24 Persons

ROME (AP) — The narcotics trial of 24 men and women — including a prince and a war hero — was resumed today with the questioning of the defendants.

Among those on trial are Prince Giuseppe (Pepito) Pignatelli of Rome and Mexico City; Marquis Emmanuele de Seta, a Sicilian aristocrat and World War II hero; and Max Mugnani, night club figure whose silk dinner jacket, police said, had special pockets for narcotics.

The defendants were arrested in June 1956 in a dawn narcotics raid on a little night club near Rome's fashionable Via Veneto. They are charged with illegal use of narcotics.

Columbus Day First Started In New York

On Saturday, Oct. 12, people all over the United States commemorated the day on which Christopher Columbus discovered the New World.

The origin of this holiday can be traced to New York City on Oct. 12, 1792. Three centuries after the actual event took place, the Society of St. Tammany or the Columbian Order, a patriotic club founded by William Mooney, gave a dinner and prepared elaborate ceremonies on the 300th anniversary of the discovery of America. The monument that the Society erected at its headquarters as part of the decorations is believed to be the first monument to Columbus raised in the United States.

In 1892, the President called upon the people to commemorate Columbus Day with exercises in schools and other places of assembly. In 1893 an international exposition supported by federal appropriation was held in Chicago in connection with a World Fair that attracted millions of visitors. During this time the Knights of Columbus had been very active in various states urging the legislatures to pass a law making Columbus Day a legal holiday. Finally, in 1909, after much difficulty, a law was passed to that effect in New York.

The first observance of Columbus Day as a legal holiday was on Oct. 12, 1909, in New York City. The crews of two Italian cruisers participated in a huge parade which ended at the Columbus monument in New York's Central Park. Sixty other Italian societies were present at the celebration. The Knights of Columbus held a meeting in Carnegie Hall where they were addressed by Gov. Charles Evans Hughes of New York. By 1910 Connecticut, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Montana, Massachusetts and Rhode Island observed Oct. 12 as a legal holiday. Now Columbus day is a legal holiday in 34 of the 48 states.

Today, however, most people do not consider Columbus Day as very important and many do not even consider Columbus himself as important. Except in South America where "Dia de la Paza" is their biggest holiday, the majority of people in the lands discovered by Columbus do nothing to observe Columbus Day. It is true that Christopher Columbus was not the first to visit America. Leif Ericson was here many years before and Amerigo Vespucci and John Cabot reached America the same decade Columbus did. But the explorations of Columbus were the ones that opened the New World to colonization.

100 Cooks Battle With Egg Beaters

BEVERLY HILLS, Calif. (AP) — One hundred amateur cooks—including a one-armed house painter — are battling with egg beaters, measuring cups and secret recipes in a $100,000 baking contest.

The 97 women, two teen-age boys and the painter hope their baked specialties rise to the occasion, which is the ninth annual "Bake-off" sponsored by Pillsbury flour company.

The judges, who sample each specialty, announce the winners at tonight's awards banquet.

The contestants arrived from 36 states, Hawaii and West Germany for the competition, which began yesterday. They are competing in three categories — juniors, brides and seniors. First prize is $25,000.

"I mean to give those women stiff competition," said the painter, Kenneth Stevens, as he slaved over a hot burner. Stevens, of Cambria, Calif., battled 99 women in the senior division.

Baking in the junior division with 13 girls were John Stone of Junction City, Kan., and Milwaukee's Paul Kellogg.

'Refrigerated' Hearts May Help Attack On Disease

By FRANK CAREY
AP Science Reporter

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. — "Refrigerated" hearts look like a good possibility in the attack on heart disease, two Mississippi surgeons said today.

They said they had developed a method for preserving cut-out dog hearts by refrigeration for appreciable periods and then with a technique for transplanting them into other dogs—had been able to keep the latter alive for spans up to 22 hours.

Drs. Watts R. Webb and Hector S. Howart, of the University of Mississippi, told about the development in a report prepared for the opening of the 43rd clinical congress of the American College of Surgeons.

"These experiments indicate," they said, "that the problems of technique and of physiology of cardiac (heart) transplantations can be solved. As soon as the associated immunological problems are solved, cardiac transplantations should become a reality."

By "immunological" problems of the tissue of one individual to the implantations of tissue from another person.

The researchers did not say what would be the source of human hearts employed in any such future technique. Presumably one source would be people who might bequeath their hearts to science; or victims of fatal mangle accidents where, with the permission of relatives, hearts might be given for preservation and use as indicated in needy heart disease cases.

The researchers said in their report that dog hearts, after removal from the animals, were preserved for periods ranging from 60 to 105 minutes by treatment with a solution to wash them free of clottable blood, and then refrigerated at 40 degrees Fahrenheit while immersed in another solution.

In some experiments, the heart and both lungs were transplanted; in others, the heart and one lung.

But it was learned that they have preserved dog hearts for six to eight hours by the method.

Dogs which received the transplants were kept alive with a mechanical heart-lung machine when their own hearts were removed.

Subversion Of Suburbs..

William Zeckendorf, a leading New York real estate man, calls for restoration of America's cities because he believes that only there can men produce their greatest possible culture.

He has most of the social scientists on his side in arguing that the great urban clusters are the sites of highest cultural development. The scholars believe this has always been true.

Zeckendorf also will not get an argument over his contention that virtually all the big U. S. metropolitan centers need major overhauling to fit them to the needs of the swelling population of this half century.

A little more controversial, however, is his statement that the suburbs and suburban living have comparatively little to offer the man of today.

The truth is that the very advantages the city presents carry with them distinct disadvantages. The result is a conflict which many seek to resolve by fleeing to the outskirts, trying to be "of the city" but not in it. The extent of this flight, mounting in recent decades, is a measure of the city's failure as a place to live.

The city's advantages stem from one basic fact: closeness of living. It permits endless contacts, with a pyramiding exchange of ideas. This cross-fertilizing of human thought enriches men's activities in every field.

The closeness also allows speedy firsthand meetings, a convenience almost vital to both business and the arts. And the concentration of people brings a concentration of wealth which spells support for many worthy endeavors and makes a vast market for goods and services.

But from the beginning there was a price to pay. The close-packed streets and buildings that go with close living shut men off from their natural link to the land. Just as men want to be together, so they seek the open spaces. The occasional forays from the city satisfy relatively few.

As city populations have grown, so has this conflict in human interest. Hence the compromise wherein men stay close to the city to reap its benefits but then retire to its fringes to gain what it cannot offer.

In this great two-way flow from city to country and back, there may be waste, confusion and even injustice (the daytime city worker escapes many burdens of city responsibility). But it seems likely to go on at ever-accelerating pace so long as the city satisfies some needs but fails to meet others.

If Zeckendorf knows how cities can be reconstructed to fulfill all human needs, he is a wise man. But one suspects that more than major overhauling is involved, that indeed most would have to be leveled and rebuilt from the ground up.

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

Near East Is Key to War Or Peace

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—In any "reappraisal" of American foreign policy, no matter how "agonizing," we have to face the fact that the Near East today is the most explosive area in the world. Anything can happen there. When and if it happens, the flame could reduce the world to a cinder.

A move by the Turkish army on Aleppo, Syria, which almost took place six weeks ago, could be the Sarajevo to spark World War III. Or war could be sparked by a Syrian move to take over Jordan, acting covertly for Moscow. World War III, however, would not be a long, drawn-out affair, fought in trenches and foxholes. It would be over in weeks or days, and there might not be much left except the smoking ruins of civilization.

That's why Khrushchev's blunt warning that "if war breaks out we are near Turkey and you are not" is so important. It's also why the equally blunt warning of the State Department that "despite distances he (Khrushchev) should be under no illusion that the United States, Turkey's friend and ally, takes lightly its obligation under the North Atlantic Treaty."

In other words, the chips are down. The two biggest nations in the world have served notice on each other that one move by the other means war.

Covert Moves Could Spark War

Having come back from this crucial area, I can report that the chance of a covert move is strong. It might be made by agents presumably acting for Russia. Or it might be made by agents presumably acting for the United States. Right now, 10 Syrians are about to go on trial in Damascus for allegedly conspiring with members of the U. S. embassy against the pro-Russian Syrian military regime. I do not believe they did so, but a great many Arabs believe otherwise. If such an agent assassinated the leader of the pro-Russian Syrian regime—and assassination is easy in Arab countries—it might touch the match to the war we want to avoid.

Or if King Hussein of Jordan, friend of the United States, should be assassinated by Syrian or Palestinian agents, it might also supply the match. Hussein's grandfather was killed by such an assassin because he wanted to make peace with Israel, and there are 400,000 Palestinian refugees in Jordan today who hate the King, plus 400,000 more Palestinians who are not refugees but also oppose the King.

If he topples, his shaky kingdom unquestionably would be united to Syria to extend the Russian bloc right down to the Gulf of Aqaba near the Suez Canal and not far from oil-rich Saudi Arabia. It might also mean a Russian-blessed union between pro-Russian Syria and pro-Russian Egypt by absorbing Jordan between them.

Or again the assassination of King Saud might supply the match. Two attempts on his life have already been made this year. He is surrounded by Egyptian-Syrian advisers. His own brother is pro-Egyptian.

Will We Fight for Oil?

Reason these incidents might involve the United States is, first, the "Eisenhower doctrine," which served notice that intrusion on these areas is tantamount to war.

Reason for the doctrine is oil—70 per cent of the world's known resources. With that oil in Russian hands, Moscow eventually would control Western Europe, thereby undoing years of American effort, millions in Marshall Plan aid, and carefully built-up NATO protection from communism.

The United States would probably fight in order to keep Near East oil out of Russian hands. And Russia says, in effect, that it too would fight if Turkey starts any move to prevent that oil from getting into Russian hands.

That was virtually what Khrushchev spelled out in his blunt warning that Turkey "would not last 24 hours."

Turkey is the initial key to war and peace. Sitting astride the Bosphorus, blocking Russian egress from the Black Sea, coveted by the czars for centuries, Turkey has been bolstered by the Truman doctrine. But leapfrogging right over Turkey, Russia has now built up a new satellite-ally in Syria, where it has dumped more Czechoslovak arms than the Syrian army could use for 10 years—a potential supply base for Russian volunteers on a drive toward the oil of the Near East.

There was a time, a few years ago, when our warning to Russia would have stopped further intrusion. But today Russia has the ICBM, the earth satellite, and is playing from strength.

That's why Foreign Minister Gromyko laughed to friends in New York when he reported on John Foster Dulles's warning to go slow in the Near East. That is also why we need what Mr. Dulles once called an "agonizing reappraisal" of foreign policy.

In the Near East we have the possible alternatives of going back to full reliance on John L. Lewis and his coal miners for the fuel of Europe; a crash program to develop atomic energy for industrial purposes, which would take five to ten years; or a settlement of the French-Algerian dispute in order to tap Algeria's promising oil resources.

But in the long run and in the rest of the world, we face the alternatives of a showdown of force against Russia or a new policy of peace with Russia. These are the problems involved in reappraising our outmoded foreign policy. In future columns I'll try to propose some possible solutions.

Briton Questions Necessity of a Queen

By ED CREAGH

Associated Press News Analyst
WASHINGTON (AP) — Is Queen Elizabeth really necessary?

This may sound like an uncalled-for question, with that gracious young lady about to visit this one-time British colony. But it's not an American who has asked the question. It's one of Her Majesty's own British subjects—loyal, no doubt, but unenthusiastic.

"A royal soap opera," is what Malcolm Muggeridge calls the British royal family and their activities. Muggeridge used to edit the humor magazine Punch. Since then he's become what a London paper describes as a "television idol." Some of the Queen's more fervent rooters describe him in other terms, not all of them printable.

Muggeridge's piece appears in the current Saturday Evening Post, an American publication. Advance word of it—the title: "Does England Need a Queen?"—trickled over to London and the fat is in the fire. Staunch royalist circles are asking: "Does England need a Muggeridge?"

Beneath the comic opera overtones, Muggeridge poses some serious questions — basically the same ones which have been asked in recent months by other critics of our royal visitors:

What is a king or queen supposed to be, anyhow, in this 20th century? In Elizabeth's case, a symbol of a nation and a commonwealth above politics? A sort of rallying point for the loyalties of duchesses and ditch diggers alike, to say nothing of Australian loin-cloth wearers and respectable citizens of Kitchener, Ont.

Muggeridge indicates he'd say yes to all of this. His point is that Elizabeth II isn't properly coached for her job. He argues (as did young Lord Altrincham, who got punched in the snoot for saying it) that the Queen is surrounded by stuffed shirts and fuddy-duddies.

And the result, says Muggeridge, is that the Queen gets criticized by her own class as "dowdy, frumpish and banal" — in other words, badly dressed and something of a dope—instead of appearing as "a useful, unifying element in a society full of actual and potential discord."

Well, this is one for our former British kinsfolk to settle and not for us.

We read of Elizabeth's fabulous jewels—the diamond and pearl circlet handed down from Queen Victoria, the Australian pendant opal set among 180 diamonds, and all the others. We remember her smart gowns—oh, let's go a bit British and call them "smashing"—on her previous visit here. The thousands of Americans who have met the young Queen have found her charming and gracious.

This writer, who has watched the Queen at fairly close range from Buckingham Palace to the White House, can testify she makes more sense than most of the young ladies you meet at public functions.

So it may or may not be that Muggeridge has been too hard on his Queen. But as a service to international relations it should be possible to soothe one of Muggeridge's critics, the pro-Labor party newspaper, The People. That journal predicts the Muggeridge piece will "shock America to its depths."

Nope. Most Americans won't pay much attention. Those who do will prefer to form their own opinion of Her Majesty, if they haven't formed it already. Most people already have, though. If you doubt it, try to wangle an invitation to any of the social functions being given for the Queen. Sorry, the guest list has long since been filled—with Americans ready to cheer for an undowdy, unfrumphish, favorite female of theirs.

Bevan Does A Switch

Responds To Khrushchev Plea, 'Hang Onto The Bomb'

By Joseph A. Dear
Of Our Washington Bureau

LONDON—Kremlin boss Khrushchev wants Britain to keep H-bombs in its arsenal.

According to a reliable report, Khrushchev recently told Aneurin Bevan "hang onto the bomb." Bevan is the darling of the Labor Party left, and would be Foreign Secretary if the socialists again come to power here.

Initially, this extraordinary report was discounted. But confirming evidence came to light during the Labor Party conference at Brighton.

There Mr. Bevan, not long returned from Moscow, passionately insisted Britain must have the H-bomb. Otherwise Foreign Secretaries would "go naked" to international conferences.

This was a complete about face for Bevan. He had been a leader of the ban-the-bomb campaign. He had favored dismantling the American air base structure in Britain.

Significantly, fellow travelling Labor Party delegates and the three big Communist dominated unions supported Bevan's switch. These unions — the electricians, boilermakers, and foundry workers — usually have been responsive to the Moscow line in the past. And during the Brighton conference, officials from the Soviet and its satellites were very much on hand. They let it be known that Khrushchev wants Britain to have the bomb.

Bevan carried the field by a huge majority. The non-Communist left of the Labor Party swallowed its misgivings and bought his argument. He was applauded by the Conservative press. In short Bevan, once considered an impossible irresponsible, has arrived.

But the intriguing question remains: Why does Khrushchev want Britain to hang onto the bomb? What has become of the Soviet anti-bomb campaign?

At this point, any answer must be speculative. Best informed guess now: Khrushchev believes an independent "third force" will contribute to world stability.

Britain can play the part only if it has the bomb. If the bomb is abandoned, Britain will have to follow the United States lead. With it, Britain could serve as a moderator between Russia and the United States.

Insofar as Bevan is concerned, this theory has the right psychological ring. According to those who know him, Bevan no longer aims for the Prime Minister's job. Rather he would be known as the Foreign Secretary who bridged the gulf between East and West, who eased world tensions, who pointed the way towards peace.

Insofar as Khrushchev is concerned, this theory has an ominous ring. For it bespeaks of Khrushchev's surpassing faith in the existing military might of Russia. He must calculate that Russia has more than enough to take care of itself. Else how could he urge the British, our firm allies, to hang onto their strongest weapon?

Good News For Atomic Age: Fish Will Survive Blasts

By PETER EDSON

NEA Washington Correspondent
WASHINGTON — Everything is going to be okay. All life on this planet is NOT going to be destroyed by some super-duper atomic-cobalt-hydrogen, fission-fusion-fightin' bomb of mega-megaton power.

Fish have a chance to survive.

Authority for this block-busting news is a piece entitled "Fallout and Fish," in the current Fisherman magazine. The author, Chet Sobsey, talked to Atomic Energy Commission scientists who have been studying test bomb effects in Nevada and Bikini.

"Chances are that fish would survive... even if a hot atomic war killed the human population," he writes.

Now this is most encouraging. It puts an entirely new light on things. It means that old Mother Earth will not become as sterile as the planets Venus and Mars, with only some highly radiated, mutated vegetables growing in a reckless jungle for the rest of time. For if the fish survive, it will shorten the time in which human life might reappear on earth to a mere 500 million years, give or take a few mega-centuries.

It took a whole billion years for man to appear the first time, if you believe your geology books.

A billion years ago, in Archeozoic times, you'll remember — or don't you? — there were only one-celled organisms.

Life was pretty simple then. But next came the Proterozoic times in which the first marine worms developed. They worked out the problems of feeding, locomotion and sex, however.

And incidentally, what more do you need?

Anyway, in Paleozoic times, 500 million years later, the amphibians appeared. And reptiles.

They came out of the water and began to take their air straight. They began to live on land, at least part time.

Then came the Mesozoic times in which the first mammals appeared. And birds. Finally, in the comparatively recent Cenozoic times covering only the last 60 million years, man emerged. Some say it was 35 million years ago and some say it was only 19 million.

Anyhow, you can see what a terrific time saving it will be if civilization doesn't have to go all the way back to Archeozoic times and start all over again with one-celled animals.

By starting with fishes — assuming that they can survive all this nuclear nonsense — it will take only another 500 million years for the fish to learn to crawl out on the land, grow arms and legs and develop into another race of human beings.

Farsighted people will of course begin to plan for this at once. There should be an agency set up in Washington to work on it. Call a White House conference. Appoint a citizens' committee. Reorganize the Civil Defense Administration for a new job.

All they will have to do is educate people to live like fish so they can survive. Skin diving should be made a compulsory course in all schools. Domestic science classes and the Agricultural Extension Service should teach people to eat more algae now so that they'll be better adjusted to it when they go underwater — instead of underground — for safety.

The National Safety Council should revise its safety first manual to teach that a covering of deep water will provide protection against the blinding glare of the atomic flash.

The Red Cross should teach that living in water will provide a constant bath to wash off radioactive particles and fallout.

The point is that if anyone becomes a fish now, he will be a superior fish, with full mastery of the problems of feeding, locomotion and sex. From this superior breed of fish should come a superior breed of humans. Maybe they could accomplish the transition in only 200 million years this time, instead of the 300 million years it took before.

All the radiation should have cooled off in 200 million years to make the earth habitable again.

And if this new breed of man doesn't do a better job on this earth than the present race has done, phooey on it, too.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Diefenbacher, D.D.

Some tasks are very tedious and wearisome. We try to get them finished but they seem to drag endlessly. After these unpleasant chores are ended we brush the dirt off our hands and clothing. We say to ourselves, "Well, that's done for a while." We do not look forward to repeating the disagreeable process.

Many people seem to pray in much the same way that they perform their unhappy work. They pray briefly at some habitual time of the day or when the going becomes so rough that they turn to a Higher Power. After they have said the things to God which are on their minds, they forget all about God and continue on their materialistic way.

When we pause to give God thought we know that He is ever present, but we must be conscious of this presence. We cannot brush God off and say to ourselves, "Well, that's that. God can come along if He insists."

Ex-Spy Takes Stand Against Other Russian

NEW YORK (AP)—A former Russian spy returns to the witness stand today to further detail how Russian Col. Rudolf I. Abel allegedly masterminded Soviet espionage activities in the United States.

His voice tinged with a Russian accent, the renegade spy, Reino Hayhanen, yesterday identified Abel as the resident espionage officer in this country known to him by the code name of "Mark."

Abel is accused of having conspired to transmit U.S. defense secrets to the Soviet Union.

Hayhanen is under indictment with Abel as a conspirator but is the government's star witness. If convicted, Abel could be executed.

Hayhanen, 37, testified in federal court in Brooklyn that he came to the United States in 1952 "to take residence as a citizen in espionage work."

A portly man with dark hair and a thick mustache, he said the Soviet secret police sent him to the United States with the promise of $500 a month in salary and expenses plus a $5,000 bonus for any highly significant item of military or atomic data.

The government says he defected to the West last May, a month before Abel's arrest. Under questioning by Asst. Atty. Gen. William F. Tompkins, the chief prosecutor, Hayhanen said he came to the United States in 1952 using an American passport bearing the name "Maki," a name he said belonged to a family that moved to Russia from Idaho in 1927.

Abel, 55, paid little direct heed to the witness. A slight man with a wisp of hair, he scribbled almost continuously at memos and notes.

A highlight of Hayhanen's testimony was his recital of a trip to Brooklyn's Prospect Park to leave an espionage message in a magnetic container near an infrequently used gate.

He said Abel accompanied him and acted as lookout. The witness could not recall the date.

James B. Donovan, Abel's court-appointed lawyer, branded Hayhanen a "professional liar" and a man who was "trained to lie," in his opening statement to the jury of nine men and three women.

Hayhanen said containers for messages included hollowed out bolts, coins, flashlight batteries and pencils. Sometimes he used magnetic containers, he said, which could be affixed to metal objects such as lamp posts.

At no time in yesterday's recital, did Hayhanen disclose the nature of the secrets he transmitted.

The witness, who said he was known by the code name "Vic," testified he received coded messages, including a message from his family in Russia, from Mikhail Sverin, a former member of the Russian delegation to the United Nations.

The witness said he and Abel were members of a cleverly geared spy ring, capable of changing from cold war to hot war espionage if the need arose.

Reporters See Royal Party From Perch

OTTAWA (AP)—The general spilled his champagne on his heavily decorated uniform when he saw it: a human head peering wide-eyed from drawn draperies high on the walls of the ballroom during Queen Elizabeth's state reception.

Few of the other 500 guests noticed the intruder or the 14 other apparently unconnected heads which appeared for two-minute intervals at a crack in the draperies.

The heads belonged to the first duly accredited corps of peeping toms. They were 15 reporters who were taken by a roundabout route up to a temporary platform to look through the curtains at the reception.

An informal "pantry peepers association" was organized after some reporters complained to public information officers that they were unable to cover the reception. Only four or five reporters in white tie and tails were admitted.

The rest drew lots for chances to peep on the proceedings.

What the 15 saw made some bitter. Thirsty and chilly on their lofty platform, they kept noticing that the well-stocked bar wasn't well patronized. Most guests wanted to keep their hands free just in case the Queen or Prince Philip decided to stop to talk.

Only one woman reporter, also chosen by lot, got to see the state dinner which precedes the reception. Dressed in plaid slacks, she climbed a 20-foot ladder to a well hidden, curtained alcove to observe the 114 resplendent guests below.

Critical of Monarch

Cancellation of TV Show Brings British Controversy

LONDON (AP)—Britain's state-sponsored television system drew brickbats and bouquets today for canceling an appearance by the monarchy's latest critic.

The center of the controversy, Malcolm Muggeridge, fumed: "If we've reached the point at which honest opinion about the monarchy is inadmissible or scandalous, then we have ceased to be a free society."

Muggeridge, 54-year-old former editor of the British humor magazine Punch, described the monarchy as "a kind of royal soap opera" in an article in the Saturday Evening Post entitled "Does England Really Need a Queen?"

He had been scheduled to discuss the article on British Broadcasting Corp. television last night but his appearance was canceled a few hours before the program.

A BBC spokesman said: "We have come to the conclusion that we should not give further publicity to a matter which has already had enough."

Muggeridge, a witty, silver-haired disturber of many a hornet's nest in Britain, had described the BBC in his article as "that serene temple of contemporary orthodoxy." He said it always treats the royal family with exaggerated solicitude.

The article said, among other things, that British bluebloods regard the Queen as "dowdy, frumpish and banal."

Muggeridge said at his home at Robertsbridge, near the English south coast, that he wrote the piece in length.

Doctor Says He Uses TV For Surgery

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Ever fall asleep in front of a television set? Well, a New York doctor says he uses a variation of television's sleep-inducing powers to prepare children for surgery.

And it works so well that an operation can actually be fun for youngsters, especially in the 9 to 14 age group. Dr. Albert M. Betcher on New York's Albert Einstein Medical College told newsmen yesterday. He said the procedure works like this:

The day before the operation, Dr. Betcher meets with the patient and encourages the youngster to talk freely. The next day he puts the child into a semi-hypnotic trance by asking that he watch a point on the wall for a pencil and describe a favorite television program.

The young patient usually closes his eyes, smiles and relieves some of the episodic.

One youngster, a sports fan, played a baseball game between the Dodgers and the New York Giants, reciting each pitch and play.

"I call this hallucinatory imagery," said Dr. Betcher. He said he has used this method on more than 500 children in the past year.

When the child is completely involved in this dream world, Dr. Betcher—using semi-hypnotic suggestions—soothes the patient's anxieties about the operation and promises no pain will be felt.

Then the actual anesthetic is administered.

"As the gases from a mask suspended above the patient's head begin to flow down by gravity, some youngster may say 'I don't like the smell,'" Dr. Betcher said.

"Then I reply, 'See, Lassie doesn't like the smell, either, sniff, sniff.'"

Will Attempt New Non-Stop Record

GALVESTON, Tex. (AP)—William Wyatt, 25, of Dallas will try again tomorrow or Thursday to fly a light plane nonstop from Galveston to Rome.

The former Marine pilot was scheduled to leave at dawn today, but he said weather forced him to postpone the flight.

Wyatt said he would follow the same route he took when he was forced by head winds and icing to abandon a previous attempt Oct. 4.

He will fly a Mooney Mark 20, a small single-engine monoplane, which he took as far as Charlotte, Prince Edward Island, after running six hours behind schedule.

He said he believed he could make the 5,500-odd miles in 36 to 40 hours.

YOUR EYES AND VISUAL FUNCTIONS

With the hunting season opening soon, the Missouri Optometric Association urges every hunter to give thought to his eyes and visual functions for the following reasons.

Again this year, as in every year in the past, there will be cases reported of domestic cattle having been shot by hunters. Far more tragically, there will be many hunters slain because they were mistakenly taken for deer or other game. In a large percentage of these tragedies the killed did not see well enough to be hunting with a gun.

Of importance, also, to the hunter is his marksmanship. To be a successful hunter it is necessary to be able to see. Many people who think they see well will be surprised to find under examination that they fail in one or more of the visual skills necessary for good and efficient vision.

The Missouri Optometric Association urges all persons, especially hunters, to really know what their vision is like. Eyes and visual patterns change gradually as a usual occurrence and for this reason considerable deterioration can take place in vision without the individual being aware of it.

Many people are finding it well worth while to have a careful examination made of eyes and vision at least once each year. The hunter, particularly, owes it to himself and his fellow men to make sure about his vision before he goes hunting.

History Repeats

Michigan State Named No. 1 Team

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

History repeated itself today. The nation's sports writers and broadcasters, again placed Michigan State ahead of Oklahoma as the No. 1 college football team in the weekly Associated Press poll.

It was almost exactly a year ago—Oct. 23, 1935—that the experts voted Michigan State to first place ahead of the all-winning Sooners. Today, they did it again, giving Michigan State 1,797 points and Oklahoma 1,704.

Michigan State, second last week, mauled Michigan Saturday 35-6 margin while Oklahoma, hard pressed by Texas, won its 43rd consecutive game 21-7.

A year ago Michigan State had won impressively from Notre Dame to go ahead. The next week Oklahoma turned its ferocity on the Irish, regained first place and didn't lose it until today. The Sooners were the preseason choice this year and had been first in each of three previous weekly ballots.

This time 92 of 196 voters put State's Spartans on top and 67 rated them second. In the point scoring on the usual basis of 10 for each first place vote, 9 for second, etc., Texas A&M came in a poor third with 1,215 points. Fourth-place Minnesota got 1,184 points.

The bulk of the Oklahoma support came on 64 first-place votes and the same number for second.

Michigan, sixth a week ago, mustered a bare 30 points and squeezed into 18th place by a one-point margin over Washington State, Rice and Army.

Duke, victorious over Rice by just one point, retained fifth place, Iowa moved up from eighth to sixth while Oregon State remained in seventh.

Notre Dame, on the strength of its 23-21 victory over Army, jumped from the second 10 up to eighth, followed by Auburn. The Arkansas Razorbacks, who upset Baylor, replaced Army in 10th place.

Sal Maglie To Play Next Season

NEW YORK (AP)—At the ripe old ball players' age of 40, a fellow should be thinking along other lines.

But Sal (the ancient barber) Maglie fits right into the plans of the New York Yankees for next season. And by the time the '38 campaign is a week or so old, Maglie will hit 41 summers.

"Maglie was a good pitcher for me in the games he worked last season," barked Yank Manager Casey Stengel in a farewell press conference before taking off for his Glendale, Calif., home yesterday. "I like him personally and so do the players."

"He's a high class fellow and he'll be a good man to have on the team next year."

Maglie, who was obtained by the Yanks from the Brooklyn Dodgers too late to be eligible for the World Series, almost got himself in the middle of it as a result of the Bronx Bombers losing the series to the Milwaukee Braves.

As a National League of long standing, Maglie wrote a "book" on the Braves for the Yanks. Almost to a man, he advised the pitchers to keep the ball low to the Milwaukee hitters. There were some scattered mutterings that his book was far from perfect.

But catcher Yogi Berra confirmed that The Barber had it right, adding that there wasn't much to be done if the Yank pitchers couldn't keep the ball low.

"If Maglie had been in the series, you can bet it would have been closer," said Stengel.

General Manager George Weiss revealed that the Yanks had tried desperately to get Maglie before the eligibility deadline which was midnight, Aug. 31.

"But the Brooklyn club had orders from the National League not to trade him to us before the deadline," shrugged Weiss.

Stengel also denied that the Yanks blew up in the series, and added that he had his eye on some promising rookies in the Yank chain. Among his chief problems, he added, was finding some insurance for Mickey Mantle and Moose Skowron, both of whom are susceptible to injury.

Colorado Halfback Is Top Ball Carrier of Nation

BOULDER, Colo. (AP)—Running second on the team in pass receiving with 3 for 34 yards. He's first in kickoff returns with 7 for 161 yards and second in punt returns with 4 for 31 yards.

In four games Stransky has carried 78 times for 467 yards—6 yards a try. He scored three touchdowns in Colorado's 34-14 victory over Arizona Saturday.

"I couldn't do that well if it wasn't for Big John," Stransky says of guard John Woolen, a 228-pound speedster who leads the interference on Colorado's single-wing plays.

"You don't have to wait for him. I just follow him and away we go."

Stransky, a standout football and track star at Yankton, S.D., says that "while the most important factor is blocking. I try to keep the tacklers from getting a good solid shot at me. I always try to watch the tackler and try to keep him off stride."

Stransky, a six-foot, 180-pounder, says he's able to pay close attention to the tacklers "because we've gone through our offensive patterns so much that they're just automatic with me. I don't have to think about them—I concentrate on the tacklers."

Stransky's ability to duck and dodge past would-be tacklers in the open field has been the mainstay of Colorado's multiple offense this season, but he's talented in other offensive maneuvers.

He ranks third on the team in passing with 4 for 9 good for 67 yards and one touchdown. He's

McIntyre Vs. Eakins Tonite In Wrestling

Red Bill McIntyre will be facing an acid test tonight at the Army when he runs into the King of Texas Style wrestlers, Ike Eakins. Eakins is invading the Midwest for the first time in over 18 months and from all reports from the Southland, Ike is rougher and tougher than ever.

Eakins may run into a surprise however, since McIntyre has been wrestling in the "big time" for the past year and has come a long way and is presently rated one of the best young heavyweights in the game today. McIntyre would like nothing more than to gain a victory over Eakins and prove that scientific, clever wrestling has far more effect than the roughhouse style. This match will be a two out of three fall one hour time limit contest.

The main event is supported by the pairing of the Minneapolis Norwegian Thor Hagen against Tommy O'Toole in the 45 minute match. The Minneapolis Viking has just recently returned to this part of the country from Texas and has learned all of the tricks of Texas Style matches. Although O'Toole cannot be classed as rough as a Texas Style wrestler, the Irishman certainly is no sissy and always gives his opponents a lot of grief with his sneak punches and stomach blows.

reverse leg lock and usually subdues the toughest opponents with this hold once he is able to apply it. In this two out of three fall semifinal match, it is quite possible that a lot of interest will be taken away from the main event, since both Hagen and McIntyre are trying to put in a bid for a title match. Regardless of the outcome of these two top bouts, it is most likely that the winners, will be matched in the near future to decide the top challenger.

Clever Farmer Pete Powell, returns to local mat wars when he tangles with Scotty Williams in the one fall or 30 minute opener. The Farmer defeated Yukon Ike last show and is ready for better billing on future shows. As usual Farmer Pete will have his pet pig Lucy with him to bring him good luck. Scotty Williams who is quite a clever grappler himself, will have to keep away from the hold the farmer calls his "pump handle."

Matches start at 8:15 p.m.

Bobby Shantz Wins Earned Run Title For League

NEW YORK (AP)—Southpaw Bobby Shantz made a successful pitching comeback in 1937 by winning the American League earned run title.

In becoming the eighth Yankee player to head the ERA listings, Shantz posted a 2.45 average.

Figures compiled by the Associated Press also revealed today that the Brooklyn Dodger lefthander Johnny Podres captured earned run laurels in the National League. Podres, who became the second Dodger hurler to win the crown, had a 2.66 mark.

Shantz, having been plagued with arm miseries, was traded by Kansas City to the Yanks last February in a multi-player deal. With the A's in 1936, the 32-year-old Shantz had a 2-7 record and a 4.37 ERA.

The change of uniforms did wonders for the diminutive lefty. He won 11 games and lost five with New York while allowing 47 earned runs in 173 innings.

Hold First Meeting To Organize Local Flying Club Sunday

At a Sunday afternoon meeting of persons interested in aviation held at the home of Tom Conroy, Weathers' Court, it was decided that plans would proceed on the organization of a local flying club.

The club, tentatively called the Sedalia Flying Club, is open to all persons interested in flying regardless of flight experience.

The purpose of the club will be to provide for members a relatively inexpensive way to learn to fly. For those members already holding a private pilot rating the club will provide an inexpensive means of transportation. A major item stressed by the club will be safe flying.

Although flying activities will hold the spotlight, the club will from time to time carry on various social activities.

The next meeting of the club is set for 7:30 p.m. Wednesday at Routsong Motor Co. All persons interested are invited to attend this meeting.

Wisconsin's Coach Pleased With 3 Wins

MADISON, Wis. (AP)—Football Coach Milt Bruhn of the University of Wisconsin said today, "It may be true that I have all my eggs in one basket, but I also have the right combination."

Bruhn, pleased with the Badgers' three victories this season, listed five points he feels brought the team up from near the bottom:

1. The right quarterback.
2. More speed in the line.
3. Greater backfield depth.
4. A group of key players with top talent.
5. Thirty-eight eager sophomores.

"In 1936 we just couldn't seem to find the right man to do the signal calling," he said. "But it's different now. Instead of playing five or six boys I'm sticking with one."

Quarterback Sid Williams is the one. He is unusually alert to seize the advantage in situations where another might back down. Bruhn feels.

"The boy's mind works like a computer," Bruhn said, "and he can deliver."

Bruhn said he believes the team passed its first major test by beating Purdue 23-14 Saturday in its Big Ten opener. The Badgers visit defending champion Iowa this weekend.

"I admit we lack experience, but that will come along," Bruhn said. "What may sound corny, yet we're going to play one game at a time and whatever we do or don't do will be remembered."

As a nucleus for his sophomore-loaded team, Bruhn has tackle Danny Lanphear, fullback Jon Hobbs, halfback Danny Lewis, end Earl Hill and Williams.

Greenberg Plans to Stay As Manager

CLEVELAND (AP)—High Henry Greenberg has no intention of stepping down as Cleveland Indians' general manager when he and 12 other club directors discuss renewal of his contract tomorrow.

He made that plain last night. He was commenting on a story in the Cleveland News that several directors oppose retaining him in the top front office job he has held since 1930.

None of the directors has asked him to step down to supervisor of farm club operations, Hank said. He denied a report that such an approach was made to avoid an open split on the board.

The onetime home-run king indicated he will welcome the show-down on a record that has been criticized more than praised by local sports writers.

"Why should the general manager with the third best record in baseball the last eight years resign?" he asked.

Last season was the first since Greenberg became general manager that the ball club did not make money and the first since 1946 that it finished below second. The Indians won a pennant in 1954, but flopped badly in the World Series against the New York Giants.

Each year since then there has been a sharp drop in the home attendance, and some directors

Welcome Lumpe Home With Celebration

Jerry Lumpe, son of Mr. and Mrs. "Pete" Lumpe of Warsaw, who made a fine showing with the New York Yankees in the World Series, will be honored at a "Welcome Home" party Thursday, Oct. 17.

Plans are being made for both the Lincoln and Warsaw residents to take part in the celebration as Jerry was born in Lincoln and moved to Warsaw in 1937. A parade is being planned for Thursday at 2:30 p.m. Both the Lincoln and Warsaw high school bands are invited. Lumpe will be presented a gift from the Warsaw Lions, with Mayor Bresee making the presentation.

There will also be a dance in his honor at the Community Building in Warsaw Thursday night from nine to midnight.

apparently feel this "calls for a front office shakeup."

This year's sixth-placers drew 722,256 fans against 865,467 attending home games in 1956 and 1,221,790 in 1955. Only Washington and the Giants in the major leagues had lower 1957 home gates.

One important factor was that Herb Score, the club's greatest attraction and ace southpaw, was shelved by an eye injury when the season was three weeks old. And leg and arm ailments kept Bob Lemon, the No. 1 righthander, sidelined about a third of the schedule.

Nat King Cole Stars in Film On Composer

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The most ambitious film about Negroes in years is being made today with Nat King Cole playing the famed composer W. C. Handy.

The film is called "The St. Louis Blues," of course, from Handy's most famous hit. The picture is being filmed at Paramount with Eartha Kitt, Pearl Bailey, Cab Calloway and Juano Fernandez also in the cast.

Cole talked about the project as he was being fitted for some clothes. I asked him if he knew Handy.

"Oh, yes, I've known Mr. Handy for 10 or 15 years," he said. "The first time I recall meeting him was when we played a benefit together. Then last fall I went east for the testimonial dinner on his 83rd birthday.

"At that time, we were discussing a proposal to film his life story. He surprised me by saying he had long been a fan of mine and would be delighted to have me play him in the movie."

How much of Handy will be in the film?

"Well, I won't try to copy his mannerisms," Cole said. "I never knew him as a young man, of course, so I don't know how he moved or acted. I've only known him since he was blind. But the elements of his life are in the script, and we're following them closely.

"I think people may be surprised at how little Nat Cole there will be in the movie. I suppose with this cast they will expect a big musical. But we are sticking to a strong story and making the music incidental. I sing only parts of four songs."

The singer remarked that the story will begin when Handy was a 10-year-old in Memphis and will carry him forward to the time "The St. Louis Blues" was accepted as a concert piece in Carnegie Hall.

"He was blind twice," Cole remarked. "We'll show when he recovered his sight, but not when he was blinded the second time."

Among the Handy songs in the picture are his noted blues of St. Louis and Beale Street, of course, plus "Yellow Dog Blues," "Chant Les Bas" and "Careless Love." There will also be a scattering of Handy hymns sung by Mahalia Jackson.

Calloway sings only one number and Pearl Bailey has none at all.

Most of the top tunes are handled by Miss Kitt, who plays the big romance in the song writer's life.

'Miss World' To Blonde Girl From Finland

LONDON (AP) — The new Miss World, a statuesque blonde who makes her living by taking care of people's feet, gave some special attention to her own today.

Ice-eyed Marita Lindahl of Finland toed the line for the judges and walked off with the beauty title last night.

But not before she had been on her feet for a long time.

While the judges were surveying her classically lovely face, long golden hair and shapely legs, Miss Lindahl thought of her feet.

"They hurt," she said. "I will now have to give them more attention."

The 18-year-old Miss Finland, a pedicurist by profession, was the tallest and heaviest of the 23 girls in the competition. She stands 5 feet 7 1/2, weighs 136 1/2 and is contoured 37, 22 1/2, 37.

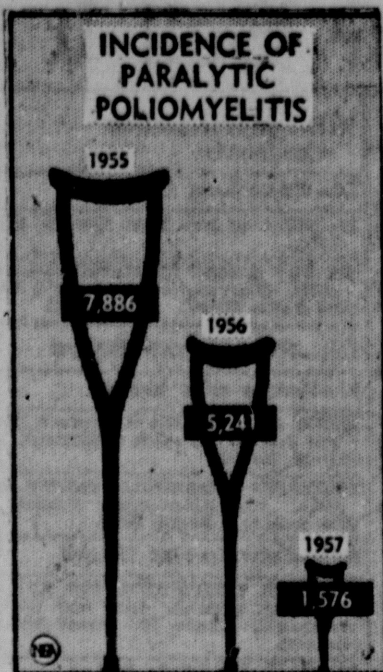

She was rewarded with a sports car and 500 pounds ($1,400).

Lillian Madsen, representing Denmark, won second place and 100 pounds ($280). Miss South Africa, Adelle Kruger, was third and Miss Tunisia, Jacqueline Tapia, fourth.

Charlotte Sheffield, a 21-year-old graduate of the University of Utah, competed as Miss United States but did not show up among the six finalists. It was the first time an American girl had not been among the front runners.

Mickey Rooney's Son Recovers From Polio

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — The 11-year-old son of actor Mickey Rooney is reported recovering from an attack of bulbo-polio.

KO FOR POLIO—Figures just released by Marion B. Folsom, secretary of health, education, and welfare, indicate a dramatic 80 per cent reduction in paralytic poliomyelitis (see Newschart) in this country over the past two years. Folsom, who credited the decline to the widespread use of Salk vaccine, said, "If people will use the vaccine available, it is possible to give paralytic polio a knockout blow within the next year."

Blames US Ridicule

EL PASO, Tex. (AP) — Sen. Yarborough (D-Tex.) says so many scientists have been ridiculed and hounded out of government service the United States is hampered in the race for mastery of outer space.

"Russia gives such men privileges, honors them in addition to rewarding them with high pay," the senator told a bar association meeting. "In America we must learn at least to recognize the dignity of the work and positions of such men."

Yarborough charged the Eisenhower administration had bungled by failing to create a climate favorable for intellectual endeavor.

To Televis Famed Drama About God

NEW YORK (AP)—Nearly everyone has heard of Marc Connelly's famous play, "The Green Pastures," which will be televised on NBC-TV Thursday (9:30 p.m., EDT) for the first time. But many, especially younger persons, are vague about its theme.

George Schaefer described it, most aptly the other day in discussing the drama which he is directing and producing as the season's initial offering of "Hall of Fame."

"It's a projection of the meeting of God and man as seen through children's eyes," he said. "It is, in a sense, the story of creation by a God who grows disgusted with his people. He is a God of wrath, but he finds he cannot forget His people, and so he becomes a God of compassion who sends His Son to earth."

"By seeing it all through the eyes of American Negro children it's possible to use Negro spirituals, a music which adds so much to the drama."

Schaefer has assembled a huge cast of 81 Negroes for this far-reaching, 90-minute drama. William Warfield, the noted baritone, will play De Lawd. Eddie Anderson (Jack Benny's "Rochester") is Noah. William Dillard plays the King of Babylon.

"Although there are now two movies in production with large Negro casts," Schaefer said, "I found no shortage of brilliant people. For every role I found a choice of at least two excellent actors. It demonstrated to me that we have a strong Negro theater in this country with a fabulous amount of talent."

"The Green Pastures" is the first in an interesting series of "Hall of Fame" productions this year. In November it will present "On Borrowed Time;" December, "Hans Brinker and the Silver Skates;" February, Shakespeare's "Twelfth Night;" March, an original drama, "Little Moon of Alban," starring Julie Harris; April, "Dial M for Murder."

TOP MAN ON THE TOTAL POLE

A total of almost $10,000,000,000 was spent for advertising last year. Nearly a third was spent in daily newspapers... $3,235,600,000.

That's more money in newspapers than ever before... more than in TV, radio, magazines and outdoor combined.

Every year, newspapers are on top of the total pole. The reason is simple. For results, newspapers can't be topped.

Use the daily newspaper as your basic advertising medium. Most advertisers do. In 1956:

Newspapers	$3,235,600,000
Television	$1,209,900,000
Magazines	$794,700,000
Radio	$570,700,000
Outdoor	$199,600,000
